Mr. E. P. Mathews we learn from the Register, came near losing his left foot, if not his life on the Greenville Railroad Thursday last. In attempting to jump from the car to a platform, the engine made a sudden move, and he was thrown on the platform. His foot was badly cut and mashed. Mr. John S. Ruff, living near Pomaria, while asleep on the S. C. Railroad track, came near being mangled to death on Thursday morning. Under the influence of liquor he had walked down the road the evening before and lain down with the rall for a pillow. The 5 A. A Word of Advice. Gov. Thompson has issued his proclamation setting apart Thursday the 29th of Nov. as a day of thanks-giving and prayer, and we as a people need no urging to observe it, in view of the many and signal favors bestowed upon us by a kind and merciful Providence. We have been exempt from many calamitles which have been visited upon other sections of country: truly have we been blessed. One day only is asked of us to devote to prayer and thanksgiving, and all business should be set aside on that day. We trust that this will be done. We urge this in advance that it may be thought of. A recent ride along the old Columbia road in the Pomaria country showed us considerable unpicked cotton. Had the farmers in that neighborhood already picked enough? Last week there were large icicles at the Railroad tank-and in the morning of one or two days, work was stopped on the factory on account of the mortar being frozen. Do the little folks realize how near Christmas is? Only thirty-two days.

The small grain crop promises great things. The whole country seems to be broad-cast with a green carpet of oats and wheat, and the result will be that next year will be like unto that of 1882. With plenty of small grain our farmers should be happy, and as independent as Philadelphia wood-sawers.

Railroad collisions are conducted on much better and safer principles now than ever before. Engines run in to each other, coaches and box cars turn over and smash up, and a rib or two are broken, or braises are sustained. but loss of life is seldom recorded. The latest railroad accident occurred on the Greenville road Monday afternoon. No one hurt.

Court adjourned last Saturday in time for the Judge to take the up train for Spartanburg, where he is holding an extra term. Judge Hudson is prompt, besides being a hard worker; and he dispatched a great deal of business during the term of court just closed. He says that the calendars at Spartanburg are, if anything, in a worse condition than ours-and he thinks that Newberry and Spartanburg lead the State in this respect.

Everytime we think on the subject we feel deep sorrow that farmers are so given up to the raising of cotton. If we firmed, we would plant largely of wheat, oats, rye, barley, corn, potatoes, &c., and meagrely of cotton. We would have one acre of good land of the above than in ten acres of cotchristian people, whose God is the Lord, and a people ready and willing not speak soberly and truthfully. to show their gratitude for favors and

The nimble-tingered pickpockets at the State Fair paid their compliments to several Newberrians. They relieved Mr. W. W. Houseal and Dr. Cannon of some small change. Dr. Dr. Jones tells this good joke-A knight of the nimble fingers was exploring a certain man's person, in search of his money, when that man turned as quietly and said to him, "My friend, my pocket book is empty and you might as well let it alone." The varlet didn't even have the conscience to apologize, but vanished in the crowd.

FOR THE HERALD. Kincaid's, Noxubee County, Miss.

Nov. 12th, 1883. DEAR HERALD :- This is rather a late fulfilmest of my promise to your junior editor to send you a communication, as I have been away a month and a half, but I will redeem the promise now and at the same time ask you to send me the Herald for a year. I had not been West for thirty years till this trip. At that time of life travel possessed more charms for me than now, for it was newer to me then, and every thing was "coleur de rose," but the illusions and enthuslasm of yeath vanish sher ave decedes of years have passed, and I was anxiou, only to get rid of the fatigue and discomfort of travel and reach the end of my journey. The very hot, hot spell of weather so very unusual and almost unprecedented in October, was an experience to be remembered not only by me but by the inhabitants of these parts, for the crops and the roads and the cisterns all felt the effects of this continuance of the long drought of two previous mouths or longer.
The roads were beds of ashes almost and every one said these roads had never been pulverised before within their memory, as the nature of the soil in these prairie lands causes them to pack and glaze by being traveled on, but in this long protracted drought the case was different. Many of the cisterns were exhausted and some persons had even to buy water, and take their stock for several miles to the rivers and other streams for water In some cases valuable lic outcry before the Court House in cattle died after these excursions from over Newberry on the first Monday in Dedrinking, soon after leaving the streams.

About the middle of October the long savere

the disterns. On the second of November we had the first frost and it was a large one, hoar. Another warm spell has been succeeded by a cold dip efter a hard rain which fell all Saturday night, and this morning (Mon-day) is clear and bright and windy, after a dull gloomy day, Sunday. This sounds a little like an extract from Vennor's almanac but it is original. I am domiciled at Oak Lawn, a very retired place, twelve miles from my post-office. I find myself as contented and happy here as if I had never traveled anywhere else, for "home is where the heart is" as the old saying is, and I prefer all country with one or two conventions. fer all country with one or two congenial companions or a large town to live in. I could not live alone as a hermit though I like retirement as much as most persons, and I like Nature in her wild as well as her cultivated garb, and this place has had and still has some of both, though the remains of the latter only give a saspicion of what the front grounds once were though even then these may not have rivalled the gardens of 'Araby the blest,' however beautiful by contrastwith the wild woods around, of which the extensive oak lawn in front beyond the pusture is a ruinous remuant, and there is a dense forest beyond the sead. The abundance of game adds to the pleasure of the teste especially to one who ask been deprived of such gratification to the palate.

Books and magazines are not wanting to the inner life at the fire-ide, and the conversation of intelligent as ociates and inmates of the house where music too lends her charms and the ear and fancy are soothed and interested by songs of the olden times as well as the new, each exciting their own peculiar associations and emotions, whilst other feelings or sensations are stirred by the grand march or waltzes, quicksteps or the master-pieces of the best musical composers. The lady of the house has kept up her music all these years of herexile not in Patmos, but in these parts of Noxubee County, facetionsly called 'Arkanasw' and in the twenty-eight year of her residence here has only visited her native Carolina, her native State, but twice, once before the war and once during the war. The expense of living out here is very considerably less than in the more thickly settled haunts of civilization. Wood is plentiful and costs nothing and that is an item of expense in owns.
